Lack of Nourishment Is Direct Cause

By Henry Wood.
Rome Correspondent of United Press.
ROME, Italy, March 31.—J. Pierpont Morgan, the great American financier, died at the Grand Hotel here today, the actual time of his demise being given at 12:05 P. M. Announcement of his death, however, was not made to the waiting newspaper men for some time after the end came, the information being held up until private cables could be sent to the London and New York houses of the Morgan firm.

The end came peacefully, while Morgan was still unconscious. Henry L. Saterlee, Mrs. Saterlee's daughter of the financier, Prof. DeGroot, Dr. Stor and Dixon and other members of the Morgan party were at the bedside, but for hours before his death, the financier gave no sign of consciousness.

Morgan's death was primarily due to lack of nourishment. From last Sunday the doctors could not induce the patient to eat, because of the lack of functional vitality in the nerve centers. The refusal of the throat muscles to do their duty made it impossible for Morgan to swallow and the doctors resorted to feeding by injection, but expressed fear that the liquid food administered in that way could not keep him up long.

Later last night it was discovered that Morgan was not assimilating this food and the doctors knew it was only a matter of hours before death. His refusal to eat was not simply because his body was incapable of nourishing itself by reason of the inactivity of his nervous system.

Morgan passed away after a week's critical illness, being for the most time unconscious since last Sunday. His last words were spoken on that day when he uttered himself and asked that his legs be massaged, a treatment that before had relieved him when he suffered from nervous disorder.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Warned by the alarming news regarding Morgan's condition in the morning papers, the largest representation of the membership of the Stock Exchange in years was seen on the floor at 10 o'clock today when the Exchange opened.

While the excitement was intense, it was not the excitement of panic. The United States Steel opened with a sale of 4,000 shares at prices from 61 to 61 1/4, the latter price predominating the market, a slight advance from the previous day.

The closing Saturday trading declined one point, the low record, at the opening, but recovered the point shortly after.

The churching newspaper stories predicting the death of Morgan drew a large crowd to the sidewalk in front of the dining room building at the corner of Broad and Wall streets. It was a quiet crowd, which evinced little excitement. The only effect noticeable was when shortly after 9 o'clock the bulletins announced the death of the American financier, there was a momentary lull.

At noon, following a conference between members of the Morgan firm in the company's office, it was decided not make any change in the interests of the firm.

H. T. Davidson, one of the members of the firm, said that no further statement would be made to the public today.

Henry Clews, one of the biggest figures in Wall street, was the first to lay the blame of Mr. Morgan's death at the door of the Puff Money Trust Investigating Committee. He said that in his opinion the financier's death was hurried by the attacks made recently upon the various enterprises in which he was interested.

"Mr. Morgan," he said, "took an active personal interest in all of the corporations with which he was connected, and in my opinion the attacks made upon them during the past few months had more to do with making inroads on his health than anything else. These attacks really sapped his life, and when he left this city, he was worrying over them."

Dispatches from home say that just before the end came Mrs. Stor and Dixon asked the members of the family, which included Saterlee, Mrs. Saterlee and Mrs. Hamilton to leave the room. They went into the adjacent compartment, but were recalled to the bedside of the dying financier just before he expired.

Doubt is expressed as to whether he really realized the seriousness of his illness. He had been in a semi-conscious condition since Easter Sunday and since Wednesday had been under the influence of drugs, unable to recognize any of the members of the family.

LONDON, Eng., March 31.—It was generally seen at the opening of the London market that the possibility of Morgan's death had been effectively discounted. Stocks which opened a little weak with fractional losses early recovered and it was evident that the expected announcement of the American financier's death would not be accompanied by any serious reaction.

Special to The Courier.

HARRISBURG, March 31.—The Legislature is scheduled to pass the Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation Act in form that will meet with the approval of Republicans, Democrats and Progressives, and embrace the views Governor Tener expressed on this subject in his recent message. Another significant legislation destined to be enacted into law at this session is the Public Utilities Bill, now in the course of being amended to meet the views of all concerned. These two acts will make radical changes in the relations of capital and labor and public utilities companies and the public and many legislators feel that no further burden the management of the industries of the State which provide employment for hundreds of thousands of persons depending on steady employment.

From the committee room, which is at times open to the public but is more frequently closed, the battle over the Gerberich food bill in the Pennsylvania Legislature has been transferred to the floor of the Senate, and no one about the State House denies that the consideration of the legislation in both Senate and House will be one of the real battles of the session. As the bill was reported, it surprised everyone. It was altered considerably in committee, an entirely new "committee clause" being put into it and permission being granted to the sulphur dioxide in preserving dried fruits providing the amount of this dioxide does not exceed 500 parts to a million. In its present form it is endorsed by the present act of 1903. The prohibition of benzene of soda entirely, as in the bill as introduced, is retained. Senators and Assemblymen in committee now face the same old controversy over the same old question on the floors of both houses. Should the bill get through the Senate in its present form it is believed that it cannot get through the House.

During the present week the resolution calling for a vote of the people on a constitutional amendment which would permit the borrowing of $50,000,000 for road building will come up for action in the House. There will be some opposition to it, but its friends are confident that it will be successful not only in the House but when it comes up for popular decision, and it is reported that an enabling act which will make it possible to begin the road work next year will be introduced. Unless legislation of this character is enacted, it will be a serious reaction.

HEARING OF FORMER BANKER
IS DELAYED BY HIS ILLNESS*Henry F. Barron, Former-City
Man, Will Be Arraigned Friday for Embezzlement.

SOMERSET, March 31.—Henry F. Barron, former Cashier of the Farmers' National Bank, was unable to appear before United States Commissioner Aaron C. Holbert today for a preliminary hearing on charges of embezzlement. Mr. Barron's physician stated that his patient was unable to be present, his condition necessitating a delay for several days. Mr. Holbert set Friday as the date for the hearing. It is expected that United States District Attorney John H. Jordan of Pittsburgh will be present at the hearing. The case has been in communication with Commissioner Holbert.

Officials of the Farmers' bank say the inference is being drawn from The Courier's story of Friday that the bank's money was used for political purposes but Somerset gossip is to the effect that Barron took the money to meet personal investments, political and otherwise. The bank's accounts were found correct on February 27, this year, when examined, the shorts are taking place between that date and March 15, when Barron resigned. As the bank has a $38,000 surplus, its loss will not affect depositors even if nothing is recovered from the accused man.

Crazed for the want of morphine, Dr. T. V. Hall, on his way from New York city to his home in Lakeview, Oregon, sprang from a Pullman car on the Duquesne Limited train at the Baltimore and Ohio station this morning and jumped into the Yough river. Spectators rescued him before he was able to carry out his intention.

When the train arrived here at 7 o'clock, Hall pulled on his trousers and leaped from the coach. Running along the cars for about 20 feet, he picked up a handful of stones and began hurling them against the side of the train. Spectators and trainmen who saw the actions of the crazed man, gave chase, and Hall turned and leaped over the 10 foot embankment into the river.

At the point where he jumped the water is shallow and before he was able to wade into the river, swift current, rescuers had caught him. Hall fought desperately before being overpowered and carried to the bank. A call to the Cottage State Hospital brought Dr. T. H. White to the station. He found that the man had suffered a fractured ankle and that his mind was deranged.

B. & O. is Resuming Western Traffic; Fast Work is Made Against Landslide

Railroad men anticipate that the landslide east of Indian Creek on the Connellsville division of the Baltimore & Ohio will be fully cleared away before tomorrow morning. The east-bound track was cleared on Saturday morning, and 200 men with additional equipment are at work removing the debris from the westbound track.

Orders received from Baltimore at the Connellsville offices of the company this morning are to the effect that trains 7 and 8 running between New York and Chicago will be operated over this division until further orders. Number 7, running west-bound, will arrive here at 3:02 A. M., departing at 3:07 A. M., and number 8 will reach Connellsville at 3:55 A. M., leaving at 4:10 A. M. The trains formerly were operated over the division running from Cumberland to Wheeling and Grafton.

Running on this division these trains will make the same stops as those made by trains Numbers 5 and 6. There was a slight mishap in the yards this morning, when switch engine 1103 jumped the track at the foot of Apple street, blocking the crossover from the east and west tracks for nearly an hour. Number 6, eastbound, was delayed until the engine was replaced on the track.

Where Two Men Die in Hospital;
Three Passengers Badly Jured But Otherwise Uninjured; Traffic Delay.

Four trainmen were hurt, two of them fatally, and three passengers were slightly injured, Saturday night at 11 o'clock in a head-on collision on the Western Maryland railroad, near Bidwell. The injured trainmen were brought to the Cottage State hospital, where two of them died early yesterday morning.

THE DEAD.
J. J. HORTON, aged 28 years of Ridgeley, W. Va., fireman of passenger engine.

J. R. SHEPHERD, aged 44 years, of Cumberland, Md., engineer of passenger train.

THE INJURED.
D. M. CAMPBELL, aged 31 years, of Elkins, W. Va., fireman of freight engine, cut and bruised.

MARVIN MOWER, aged 37 years, of Cumberland, Md., engineer of freight train, cut and bruised. The injured passengers were hurt slightly by being thrown against the forward ends of the cars, but did not require medical attention.

The accident occurred west of Bidwell. The freight engine had shunted a train into a siding to cut out a disabled car, and was pulling off the main track when the westbound passenger train came along and crashed into it.

The force of the collision turned the passenger engine over on its side, catching Hotchkiss and Shepherd underneath. Both were terribly burned and scalded. Campbell and Mower were extricated. Campbell and Mower jumped from their engine before the accident occurred. Their injuries were not so severe, consisting of lacerations about the body.

The passengers of the train, which left the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie station on the West Side, Saturday night at 10:30 o'clock, were saved by a up. The three injured passengers were women.

The injured trainmen were brought to this city, arriving here at 2 A. M. Sunday. They were immediately removed to the Cottage State hospital. Fireman Hotchkiss died there at 6:15 Sunday morning and Shepherd expired last night at 1 o'clock.

Yesterday morning Campbell and Mower were able to leave the hospital. The bodies were removed to Funeral Director J. E. Sims' establishment and after a short stay they were shipped last night to their respective homes. Hotchkiss was 28 years old and resided in Ridgeley, W. Va. He is survived by his widow and three children.

Engineer Shepherd was 44 years old and was unmarried. He had been in the employ of the Western Maryland road for a number of years. He resided at Cumberland with his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Shepherd. He was a member of the Masonic lodge of Cumberland and was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of this city.

Coroner J. J. Bell will hold an inquest into the deaths. He appointed the following jury: E. B. Bradford, J. K. Measdale, H. A. Winow, F. M. Pritchard, William McCormick and Samuel King. No date was set for the inquest.

THE MISSING WORD.
This week it begins with "A" and ends with "T." Now jump in and see what kind of a hunter you really are. Those who should miss three or four words permit us to say: Do not get discouraged, as those who find the first word are apt to fall down on several later on. This you see will even up. It is not thought any one will find all the words. The highest number out of 12 may not exceed eight or nine, as from time to time the words will be made more difficult. So do in and stick right to it to the last. Then, too, remember there are Eight Gold Awards.

A Household Hint.

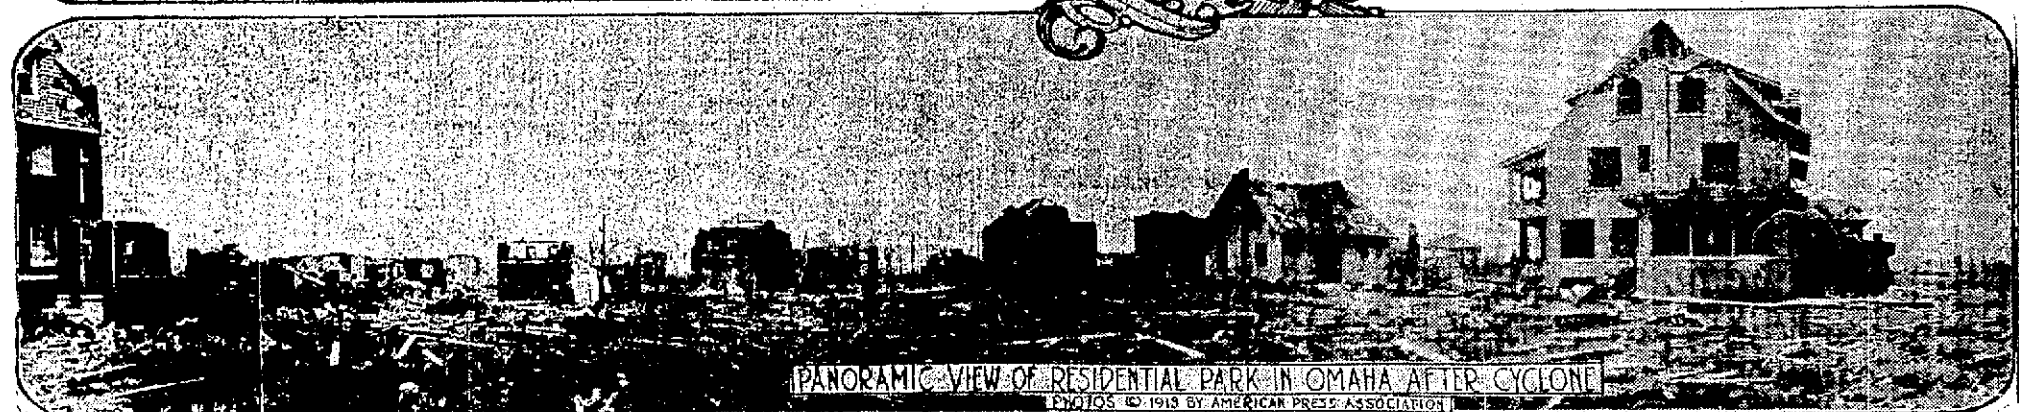

It is unnecessary, and indeed unwise to experiment with your diet. Your health is worth careful consideration. The enjoyment of a nicely prepared meal is considerably enhanced by the addition of a cup of good pure coffee. Those whose tastes call for something above the ordinary will be charmed if you serve "BREAKFAST CHIEF" coffee with your meals. A soft creamy flavor, and a delightful aroma, make "BREAKFAST CHIEF" coffee a favorite beverage in thousands of homes. Pure and fragrant it will delight you. Why not "BREAKFAST CHIEF" coffee in your home? Your grocer carries it in stock.—Adv.

NEWS OF A DAY AS GATHERED UP ABOUT SCOTSDALE

One Man Killed and One Injured While at Work in Mill.

ANDREW NELSON LOSES LIFE

Mrs. Joseph Brownfield is dead; Moore held memorial service; Other Notes of News for the Day.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, March 31.—Andrew Nelson, millwright at the Old Meadow mill of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company, was instantly killed while engaged in his work of setting rolls at the mill yesterday forenoon. It is said that he hitched a five-ton crane to a 15-ton hoisting and the shaft of the crane broke when the heavy weight was thrown upon it. The falling shaft literally cut the man's head off. The body was brought by Undertaker Wm. Peterson to his morgue and prepared for burial and then removed to the man's late residence in North Scottsdale, where he leaves a wife and four children. The deceased was 47 years old, and had been born in Warburg, Sweden. He came to this country 20 years ago, and had worked for a long time with the mill company. The funeral will be held from the Lutheran Church at 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, in charge of Rev. Leonard Alexander, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran Church of Greengarden.

Emmett Jensen, miser mechanic at the Old Meadow, was seriously injured while at work on Saturday afternoon by a chain breaking and striking him on the back, breaking his ribs and otherwise injuring him. He was taken to the Mt. Pleasant hospital.

JOSEPH BROWNFIELD DEAD

Joseph Brownfield, blacksmith at the pipe mill for many years, died in the Mt. Pleasant hospital on Saturday from pneumonia, after three weeks' illness. The deceased was an old and respected citizen and leaves a wife and family in the old country.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.
The Loyal Order of Moose held their memorial service on Sunday afternoon at their lodge rooms, with a large attendance. The program was as follows: Devotion, Gamble's orchestra, memorial service by officers of the lodge: "We Are Going Down the Valley," quartet, memorial sermon by Rev. W. M. Becken of Boston, Pa.; selection, vocal solo by Professor B. H. Gamble, and the invocation by Rev. M. Becken. Each member wore a red flower.

TO MOUNT PLEASANT.
The Scottsdale basketball team will go to Mount Pleasant tonight to try and trim up the bunch at that place. The game will be for the championship of Westmoreland county, each town's team having won a game and this being the decisive one. Ludwig claims the championship, but this team is to play the deciding contest with Scottsdale.

FLOOD SUFFERERS.
At all the churches of town collection boxes were received for the Ohio flood sufferers, and quite a fund was added to that which came in to the banks on Saturday evening. At the Methodist Episcopal Church the money table was $425.

MRS. BROWNFIELD DEAD.
Mrs. Mary Knox Brownfield, wife of Joseph Brownfield, died at her home in Scottsdale on Saturday evening, after a short illness, from blood poisoning, which started from a small carbuncle. The deceased leaves a husband, who is with the U. S. Price Coke Company. She was a well known young woman, an active member and worker in the First Methodist Episcopal Church and her last church work was as the leader of a missionary meeting a few days ago. Her family lives in San Francisco and the funeral will not be held, it is expected, until they arrive here. They have been notified of her condition last week, and are hurrying east.

Mrs. McBurney's Funeral.
The funeral of Mrs. Susan McBurney took place this morning from the residence of her son, H. R. Daubaudt in Uniontown. The funeral party, following the services, left on a special street car for Vandergriff, where services were held in the Cumberland Presbyterian church. Interment in Dickerson Run Union cemetery.

Are Licensed to Wed.
Fred Sauf and Lillian M. Clayton, both of Connellsville, were granted a marriage license in Uniontown Saturday.

Vapor Treatment A SUCCESS

Catarrh, Coughs, Colds and Sore Throat Quickly Yield to HYO-ME, Vapor.

Hundreds of thousands of sensible people all over the civilized world have successfully breathed Booth's HYO-ME for catarrh and nose and throat misery.

Besides breathing HYO-ME through the inhaler during the day thousands have used the vapor treatment at night. Here it is:

Heat a teacup and then fill it half full of boiling water. Pour into the water one-half teaspoonful of HYO-ME, hold the cup close to face and breathe the healing germ destroying vapor through both nose and throat deep into the lungs.

A bottle of HYO-ME is 50 cents at druggists the world over. The complete outfit which includes inhaler costs $1.00. Just breathe it—no such dosing.

For catarrh, coughs, colds and sore throat and all nose and throat misery, HYO-ME is guaranteed by A. A. Clarke.—Advertisement.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET

Greenstuffs touched several new lows during the week and all meats advanced in price as a result of the floods in Ohio. Shippers in the west have been unable to get their produce through to the east, and consequently there is a shortage in several lines.

New cabbage has arrived in the market and is bringing four cents the pound. Chooses have dropped to lower levels, while butter went up one cent this pound.

It is expected that western meat will be sent through tomorrow or Wednesday, relieving the meat situation here. Butchers are short on several lines.

"I ain't heard of no train robbery," muttered the lanky foreman of the Flying Heart, "nor I don't aim to handle no tainted money." And Stover and Gallagher faced each other hard before leaving.

Jean saw it, and whispered to Chaplain: "Oh, Jack, dear, I'm so terribly frightened!" But Helen Blake, who overheard, left her companions and went straight to Gallagher.

"I should like," she said, "to wager a few dollars on Mr. Speed and the honor of the Flying Heart."

Both Skinner and his foreman stared at her nonplussed.

"You don't look like a betting lady," the latter managed to remark, jocularly.

"I'm not. I never made a wager before in all my life, but you see, Mr. Gallagher, I believe in our man."

Gallagher lowered his eyes. "How much do you aim to risk, miss?"

"I don't know what the rules are, but I think our side ought to bet as much as your side. That is the way it is done, isn't it?"

"You mean that you aim to cover what Mr. Speed don't?" The girl nodded.

Gallagher spoke admiringly. "You're right game, miss; but I reckon we don't want your money."

"Why not?"

"I suppose there ain't no particular reason."

"If Mr. Speed can beat Mr. Covington, who is the best runner at Yale, I'm sure he can defeat Mr. Skinner, who never went to college at all. They have all turned against him, and he—he is so brave!" Miss Blake's indignation was fearful, and Gallagher spoke hurriedly:

"He may be brave all right, miss, but he can't win unless Skinner does. You save your money to buy chocolate an' bon-mots, miss. Why, listen! (the stockman softened his voice in a fatherly manner): "This Fresno party is wise; five hundred of this coin is his."

Helen uttered a cry. "Do you mean he is betting against Mr. Speed?"

"Nothin' else."

"Despicable!" breathed the girl. "Wait a moment, please!" Helen hurried back to Chaplain, while Gallagher muttered something like "I ain't takin' no orphan's money."

"Jack!" (the girl was trembling with excitement), "you told me on the way over that you had five hundred dollars with you. Let me have it, please. I'll give you my check when we get home."

"My dear girl, you aren't going to—bet it?"

"Don't do that!"

For answer she snatched the pocketbook from his hand.

"Mr. Gallagher!" she called.

Skinner watched from afar. "Some class to that gal!" was what he said, which proved that he was a person not wholly without sentiment.

CHAPTER XVII.

SPED leaped down from the backboard in which Cararo had driven him and Glauco over to the Centipede corner.

"I told you to jump out when we crossed that bridge," was Larry's reproach to him. "You could have broke your arm. Now—it's too late."

But Speed joined his friends with the most cheerful of greetings. They responded nervously, shocked at his flippant assurance.

"This, Mr. Speed, is the scene of your defeat!" Gallagher made the introduction.

"And this is A. Skinner, no doubt?" Wally shook hands with the Centipede runner, who stared at him, refused to recognize his knowing wink, and turned away.

"You think pretty well of yourself, don't you?" suggested Gallagher unpleasantly, and Speed laughed. There was no reason why he should not laugh. Either way his hour had come. "I s'pose that patch is full of money?" Gallagher pointed to the suitcase.

"On the contrary, it is full of clothes. It is I who contain the money." He thrust a cold palm into his pocket as Covington dragged him aside to advise him not to be an utter idiot, to throw his money away if he must, but to throw it to charity or to his friends.

"Yes," Glass seconded, lugubriously, "and hold out enough to buy me a 'Gatos Ajar' in immortality." But he said also, as if to himself, "He may be wrong in the bet, but he's a game little guy."

As the Centipede foreman counted the money, Helen came forward, announcing:

"You'll have to win now, won't you, Mr. Speed? I've wagered five hundred dollars on you. I bet against Mr. Fresno."

"Fresno! So he's out from cover at last, eh?"

"I haven't been under cover," spoke

"Mr. Gallagher!" She called.

up the Californian. "I've been winged all along."

Chaplain wheeled. "Does it seem to you quite the thing to bet against our man, Fresno?" he inquired, his glance full in the other's eyes.

"Why not?" There's no sentiment in financial affairs."

Speed shrugged. "Our tenor friend will sing his way back to California. He turned with his thanks to Helen. "The talkin' machine!" interrupted still Bill suddenly. A group of men was approaching, who bore the photograph upon a dry-goods box, and deposited it in state beside the race-course. "Say, Gabby, s'pose you give us a tune, just to show she's in good order."

"Suspicious, eh?"

"You bet! There's a monologue I'd admire to hear. It's called—"

"We'll have 'The Holy City,'" said Wally, positively. "It's more appropriate."

So, with clumsy fingers, Gallagher fitted a record, then wound up the machine under the jealous eyes of the Flying Heart cowboys.

Drawn by the sound, Skinner, wrapped to the chin in his blanket, idled toward the crowd, affording Glass a sight of his face for the first time. The latter started as it stung, and crying under his breath, "Salted car-horse!" drew his employer aside.

"Say," he said, pointing a finger, "who's that?"

"Skinner, the man I run."

Glass groaned. "His name ain't Skinner; that's 'Whiz' Long. Six years ago I saw him win the Sheffield Handicap from scratch in nine-three." Then, as Speed did not seem to be particularly impressed, "Don't you understand, Wally? He's a pro; this is his game!"

To which the younger man replied, serenely and happily, "It's fixed."

"What's fixed?"

"The race. It's all arranged—framed."

"Who framed it? How? When?"

"Sh-h! I did it yesterday; by stealth; I fixed it."

"You win from 'Whiz' Long, and you can't run under fifteen?"

Wally nodded. "I told him that—it's all right."

"You told him?" Glass staggered. "It's all right? Say! Don't you know he's the fastest, crookedest, cheatingest, double-crossingest—why, he just came to feel you out!"

And Speed turned dizzy.

"And you tell for that old stuff!"

Larry's voice was trembling with anger and disgust. "Why, that's part of his 'work.' He's double-crossed every runner he ever had. He's cheated his mother. Wait!"

Skinner had left the crowd, and was seated now in the shade of the corner fence. He glanced upward from beneath his black brows as Larry reached and greeted him. "Hello, 'Whiz'! I just 'made' you—"

Then he shook his head.

"I haven't got you. My name is Skinner."

"Nix on that moniker," Glass smiled, indulgently. "I had a man in that Sheffield Handicap six years ago."

"You're in bad," asserted the cool steadily, "but assuming that my name is Long—"

"I didn't say your name was 'Long.' I called you 'Whiz' Glass chuckled at the point as he scored it. "Now come in, be good."

Skinner darted a look toward Gallagher and the Centipede men gathered about the thrilling phonograph, stopped and tied his shoes, and breathed softly:

"Spill!"

"This little fellow I'm trainin'—does he win?"

"Without an upward glance, Skinner inquired:

"Did the man you trained for the Sheffield Handicap win?"

"Never mind that. Does this frame up as though it happened?"

Speed, drawn irresistibly, had come forward to hang upon every word, and now chose this moment to interrupt.

"It's all right, Mr. Skinner—"

But Skinner leaped to his feet.

"Don't try anything like that!" he cried in a terrible voice that brought Gabby Gallagher striding toward them.

"What's goin' on here? Are they tryin' to fix you, Skinner?"

"Not a bit like it," Glass protested stoutly. "I only asked him which side he'd rather run on, and now he calls for police protection."

"Don't try it again, that's all!" the cook warned, suitably.

"I reckon I'll take a hand in this!" Gallagher was in a fine rage, and would have fallen upon the offender had not Stover stopped in his path.

"I reckon you don't!" he said easily.

The two glared at each other, and were standing thus when Speed and his trainer moved kindly off. They made their way to the house in comparative silence. "I—I made a mistake," said Wally.

"You've been jabbed like you was a baby," said Glass. "There ain't but one thing to do now. Go into the house and change your clothes, and when you get ready to run, get ready to run for your life—and mine."

Over on the race-course Gallagher was inquiring:

"Who's goin' to send those r'ere athletes away?"

"I ain't," announced Wally without hesitation. "But perhaps the handiest man present with a weapon, I'm goin' to start this journey." He looked his own squarely in the eyes. "Has anybody got objections to me?"

The silence was flattering, and more loudly now, so that Skinner might hear, he added, "If your man tries to beat the gun, I'll have him wingin' his way to lands celestial before he makes his second jump."

Gallagher acknowledged the fairness of this proposition. "This race is goin' to be square," said he. "We're ready when 'y'all are."

J. Wallingford Speed stepped out of his clothes and into his silk running-suit. He was numb and cold. His hands performed their duties to be sure, but his brain was idle. All he knew was that he had been betrayed and all was lost. He heard Glass pandering instructions into his ear, but they made no impression upon him. In a dull trance he followed his trainer back to the track, his eyes staring, his bones like water. Not until he heard the welcoming shout of the Flying Heart horsemen did he realize that the worst was yet to come. He heard Larry still cooing earnestly: "If your man tries to beat him up, and some one said:

"Are we ready?"

Glass held out his hand. "Good-by, Mr. Speed."

Chaplain came forward and spoke with artificial heartiness, "Good-luck, Wally; beat him at the start," and "Gallagher followed.

"Remember," he cautioned, sadly, "what I told you about the start—it's your only chance."

"Why don't you fellows think about the finish of this race?" faltered the runner.

Then, in a voice broken with excitement, ment, Helen Blake spoke, holding out her hand for a good-by clasp. "Dear Mr. Speed," she said, "will you try to remember this?—remember to run before he does, and don't let him catch up to you. If you do that, I just know you'll win."

This magnificent display of confidence nerved the athlete, and he smiled at her. He wished to speak, but dared not trust himself.

Gallagher was calling; so he went to the starting-point, whence he surveyed the course. There it lay, no more than a lane leading down between ranks of brown-faced men whose eyes were turned upon him. On the top rail of the corral perched Wally, revolver in hand. The babble of voices ceased, the strident laughter stilled, Speed heard the nervous rustle of feminine skirts. Skinner was staring like a statue, his toe to the mark, his eyes averted.

"You'll start here and run a hundred yards out yonder to the tape," Gallagher announced.

"I refuse!" said Speed firmly.

THE BACK YARD FARMER

BY Prof. John Willard Bolte

The City Man on the Farm.

When other things are equal, probably the safest form of agriculture for the inexperienced city man to take up is a combination of poultry and fruit. The logic back of this choice is simple and, we believe, sound.

Chickens will thrive and produce profitably under proper management in every section of this country. They are hardy and stand abuse well, while the amateur is learning the ropes. Small capital is required to make a start, and they multiply rapidly. In fact, a shrewd old Yankee, "Down in Maine," is credited with starting a successful poultry farm by borrowing a setting hen from one neighbor and a setting of eggs from another. After the chicks were hatched he kept the hen until she laid a setting of eggs and then returned both, thereby discharging his debts without expense.

Any sort of well drained land will do for chickens. About all one man can look after profitably is 1,000 hens and their offspring, and he can count on a dollar profit per hen each year. In small stocks the profits often run much higher per hen. Housing 1,000 hens in colony houses holding 100 hens to the pen will cost from $2,500 to $5,000, depending upon the material and the construction.

By scattering these houses over a ten acre tract of land there will be no need of inside fences and the flocks will keep separate. By planting this ten acres of good apples, provided it is located in an apple growing region, and handling same according to commercial orchard methods, one can make the land do double duty. It is known now that proper location and handling will secure a crop of apples every year. The secret is this:

- 1—Spray trees properly.
- 2—Prune trees properly.
- 3—Keep the ground cultivated all summer.
- 4—Pluck off all but one of the green apples from each fruit spur as soon as they set.
- 5—Use heaters during late frost.

The third item keeps the water in the soil, and the apples stay on the trees instead of blowing off. The fourth rule is one of the most important, as it even up the strain on the tree and while the yearly crop will be smaller than the natural crop one year and larger the next, it will cost less to handle and the fruit will be much better in form, size and color, and it will bring in more money.

Such an orchard will bring in from $300 to $500 a year per acre, and the cost of handling will not exceed $75. It will take from six to ten years to bear profitably. Set the trees out in 50 foot squares. Between them set dwarf fruit trees in 50 foot squares. The dwarfs will bear quickly and are to be taken out when the large trees bear. The ground under and between the trees should be planted to a rotation of head crops, like potatoes, corn, root crops, garden crops, etc.

ABANDON PROJECT

Canal Dover Steel Mill will Not Be Built.

A final meeting occurred at Pittsburg this week between the promoters and the Canal Dover, Co. interests who were supporting the proposed sheet mill, and as a result the project was abandoned.

The matter which was brought up at the point where a company was to be chartered with $750,000 preferred a $750,000 common stock, each subscriber of $100 to receive one share of preferred and one-half share common stock, the full $750,000 to be subscribed and the promoters to receive the odd $75,000 common stock as bonus. The promoters undertook to raise $550,000 while the townspeople had subscribed for $200,000 or $225,000.

At the meeting the townspeople stated they would give bond that half of the bargain would be carried out and asked the promoters to do the same. When this proposition was not approved the project fell through and the townspeople were left with many at about 50 cents above the market price. It was his intention to make a contract with M. A. Hanna & Company to obtain hot metal from the Dover furnace of the Penn Iron & Coal Company at about 50 cents above the market price, this extra being selling share of the advantage to be derived there from being no freight and from the metal being hot. The total advantage would be perhaps between $1.50 and $2. A steel plant of the 75-ton basic open-hearth furnace
